Over half denied 80-81 ISSC aid New grants not allotted for Eastern

by Linda Charnesky

More than half of about 640 Eastern students who have applied thus far for funds from the Illinois State Scholarship Commission for the 1981-82 school year have already been informed that they will not get an award, John Flynn, associate financial aid director, said Thursday.

Most of the 640 students who have been told they will not get an award are incoming freshmen who have not had ISSC awards before, but Flynn said students who have attended Eastern previously have received none or much lower awards than in previous years.

Flynn said some students have come to him questioning the reason for their reduced award.

"The hardest part is explaining to these kids why they are not getting as much money," Flynn said. "Many of them are not aware of the 25 percent parental contribution and student self-help increases."

The ISSC voted last November to raise the amount of student self-help—the amount of money students must contribute to their education through work or loans—from $950 to $1,200.

About 2,000 ISSC awards were given out to Eastern students last year and Flynn said he expects only about 1,500 students to receive ISSC for the 1981-82 school term.

Flynn said that because of the 25 percent increase in parental contribution that has already been implemented for next year, and a contingency plan that may be put into effect next year, awards were expected to be much lower this year than last year.

The contingency plan, if implemented by the ISSC, will affect students with an unmet financial need of $400. The unmet need is determined after the ISSC takes into consideration students' additional financial resources and subtracts the total from the cost of education at the school.

If the contingency plan is implemented by the ISSC, Flynn said the number of students receiving ISSC at Eastern could drop as low as 1,100.

Flynn said the ISSC will not know whether it will adopt the contingency plan until July, when the Illinois General Assembly makes a decision as to what the 1981-82 ISSC budget will be.

The ISSC submitted a recommendation of $97 million to the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the IBHE has also submitted a recommendation of $97 million to the Illinois General Assembly.

by Linda Charnesky

Eastern students will not receive a portion of the $508,000 that Gov. James Thompson recently approved in supplemental requests for the Illinois State Scholarship Commission to fund grants promised to 750 students during the 1980-81 school year.

John Flynn, associate financial aid director, said Thursday that no Eastern students will receive part of the $508,000 because Eastern's billing was submitted to the ISSC before the deadline of Sept. 1.

After the ISSC sends the Financial Aid Office a list of Eastern students applying for ISSC for the upcoming year, the Financial Aid Office sends the ISSC a verification of the fees that can be deferred because of their ISSC awards, Flynn said.

"We submitted all of our billing before the deadline—so we had no money left to receive, he said.

"We (Eastern) are one of the first of the larger schools, counting community colleges, to get our billing in early," he said.

Schools that will receive part of the $508,000 are those that did not get their billing in on time, Flynn added.

The original request for supplemental funds by the Illinois Board of Higher Education and Illinois General Assembly was $5.3 million, plus the additional $508,000.

The $5.3 million cut by Thompson Feb. 18 would have gone to some 12,000 Illinois students who applied for ISSC after Aug. 28, when the ISSC stopped processing applications because they ran out of funds.

Senate size cut proposed

by Patty O'Neill

In an effort to "make the Student Senate more efficient and to develop competition among senators," Senators Bill Mueller and Mike Nowak have proposed a bylaw change which would cut the Senate from 30 members to 20 members.

Mueller said that with fewer positions available, better people willing to work harder would be elected.

"People who put more into an election tend to be better Senators," Mueller said.

The actual cut in the number of Senators will not hurt committees, because the Senate will encourage losers to still become involved in student government by working on committees, Mueller said.

There are seven committees on the Senate which any interested student can work on.

The proposal also stipulates that all senators and executive officers

Newhouse severs tie with Moonie lifestyle

(In the final part of a four-part series looking at a former Eastern student's involvement with the Unification Church, Kay Newhouse's outlook on the organization and her life now is examined.)

by Tim Schmidt

Kay Newhouse fulfilled her promise to the deprogrammers to research the Unification Church more thoroughly and remain in a neutral position, two steps which gave her a new outlook on her experience as a Moonie.

Kay had returned to Charleston during the third week of September following her deprogramming, and a few weeks later she went back to Ohio to stay with Jon and four others in a co-op.

Jon had gone back to Ohio after the deprogramming session, but called Kay every night.

"He was the only one I could really talk to," Kay said. "Jon always kept me on an emotionally-even keel."

After settling back in Ohio, Kay said she knew she would have to face the members of the Collegiate Association for the Research of Principles Center (CARP), and a couple of months after her return, she visited the center.

The Moonies at the center were aware she had gone through deprogramming.

She received a warm greeting from the group, she said.

Inside the Unification Church:

A former Moonie reflects on her involvement

She explained to them that the deprogramming "didn't stick."

"I still agree with a lot of your points, but I do not intend to be actively involved," she said.

She said the Moonies misunderstood that to mean she was a "closet Moonie,"—that she would continue working for the organization in secret.

After the visit, Kay's ties with the Moonies were severed.

"I have no plans to go back to CARP, but also have no plans to join deprogrammers. I am basically pretty neutral," she said.

Kay added, "The doctrine (of the church) still matches my internal attitudes, but I experienced it first instead of researching it first."

Her promise to do research following her deprogramming resulted in her attending the deprogramming of another Moonie, "strictly as an observer," she said.

There were "a lot of things I observed in this one that I didn't see in mine," Kay said.

Kay said as an observer she was able to see more clearly how Moonies "rationalize" their involvement with the organization.

She added, however, that the research she has done so far "is not in the Moonies favor."

Her six month neutral period ended on Feb. 28 and now, "for all practical purposes I am starting a new life," she said.

She said she has a "low-keyed job" to help get her "back on her feet."

Kay said the experience with the Moonies has changed her attitude toward her parents somewhat.

"There is a certain amount of resentment (toward them). I don't think it (the deprogramming) should have been done to begin with.

"I don't hate them, but I am understanding them better," she added.

The experience has changed her family's view of her too.

Kay's mother said she definitely feels she "has her daughter back again."

"We've got the old Kay back—and grown up, more mature," she said.

But Kay said she has few regrets about joining the Unification Church.

"CARP is the best thing that happened to me. The very essence of it makes you take a close look at your

Cronkite's Friday retirement marks start of ratings war

NEW YORK—Walter Cronkite leaves CBS' "Evening News" after Friday night's broadcast, with the rival networks eagerly awaiting a tug-of-war for viewers no longer bound by loyalty to the anchorman recognized as one of the most trusted men in American.

Both ABC and NBC are mounting print and on-air campaigns promoting their own news programs. But no one would forecast an early end to CBS' 13-year reign as the No. 1 network in news after Dan Rather, a "60 Minutes" correspondent since 1975, replaces Cronkite on Monday night.

"I don't see any immediate change," said William J. Small, president of NBC News and a former CBS News executive. "If it does come, it will be a matter of months."

The stakes are enormous, and both ABC and NBC—who have run almost neck-and-neck in second place since late in 1979—are anxious to increase their evening news ratings at CBS' expense. A single rating point for the news can mean as much as $7 million a year in advertising income.

Cronkite, who is 64, will remain with CBS News as a correspondent and anchorman for the network's new "Universe" science magazine.

Poles warn against strikes after Kremlin declaration

WARSAW, Poland—Union leaders maintained a strike alert in one city Thursday but warned against a strike in another following a Kremlin declaration on Poland regarded as the toughest since labor and economic troubles erupted in this Communist nation last summer.

The Moscow communique followed a meeting of Polish leaders with President Leonid I. Brezhnev and other Soviet officials Wednesday.

The statement said the Soviets "voice their conviction that the Polish communists have both the ability and the resources to reverse the course of events, to liquidate the perils looming over the socialist gains of the nation."

The unrest in Poland raised the threat last fall of possible Soviet military intervention as troops, in addition to those already in the country, were alerted along the borders. The statement, while a hard warning, was not regarded as an ultimatum in diplomatic circles here.

Afghans stop rural battle to expel Russian invaders

NEW DELHI, India—Afghan rebels, crippled by shortages of weapons and food, have largely abandoned a 14-month fight to oust Soviet troops from the countryside and are concentrating instead on the major cities, a reliable source in Kabul reported Thursday.

The report from the Kabul source said information reaching the Afghan capital indicates large numbers of Afghans in some northern and far-western areas of the country are dying of hunger. Food shortages are said to be especially acute in remote areas.

This, combined with a persistent inability to acquire large caches of weapons with which to fight the estimated 85,000 Soviet soldiers in Afghanistan, is driving the guerrillas into the cities, the source said.

The Kabul source said the food shortages have developed for two reasons:

—Money collected from Afghans and foreign countries by various groups of "Mujahidin," or Moslem freedom fighters, to buy food and weapons has never reached resistance groups inside the country.

—The Soviets are using food as a weapon.

The Soviet Red Army has been in Afghanistan in force since December 1979, when a Soviet-backed coup toppled the government of Hafizullah Amin.

Blood sign up flows on

by Mike Pramshafer

Appointments for Eastern's spring Red Cross Blood Drive March 9 through 12 "are going real well," Pam Richards, student blood drive chairman, said.

"If everybody makes their appointment and the walk-in days go well, we should have no problem making our goal of 1,700 pints," she said.

Richards said that Monday and Wednesday are both appointment days. Times will be from 1 to 6 p.m. Monday and from 11 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. Wednesday. Walk-in days are Tuesday and Thursday 11 a.m. to 4:15 p.m.

Pat Moxely, a Red Cross representative from St. Louis, said

Eastern's campus is one of the top college donors. The average percent of college students on campus that donate blood in the nation is 5 percent, while Eastern has a 15 to 16 percent average, Moxely said.

Richards said workers for the blood drive are still needed. Persons interested in working for the drive should call Jeff Fahrenwald at 345-7907 during the evening, or 581-6119 during the day.

She said the blood drive volunteers are encouraging everybody to give blood because "with the breakdown of the blood, giving one pint helps three to four other people."

IBHE review program to be dropped by CAA

by Laura Henry

The Council on Academic Affairs Thursday passed a resolution recommending that the annual program reviews currently conducted for the Illinois Board of Higher Education of State Colleges be dropped.

Carol Elder, chairman of a subcommittee to define the CAA's role in the review program, said the step would eventually strengthen Vice President for Academic Affairs Stanley Rives' hand in dealing with the IBHE.

"It is not the intent of the council to take ourselves out of a reviewing position, but to leave the reviewing to a body more capable of it," Elder said.

The resolution also proposed that the CAA have a formal role in the review process in the form of a "narrative analysis including recommendations for future program directions."

Before the resolution was passed, the CAA placed existing academic programs in the categories of expand, status quo, status quo (asterisk), eliminate, phase down and suspend.

The CAA agreed that the program review subcommittee should, according to the resolution, "keep the council informed of work in progress" and was left as a standing committee.

Rives presented a statement sent to Robert Pringle, deputy executive director for academic affairs for the Board of Governors, expressing his findings of the annual program review.

"I am recommending that all EIU academic programs be put in the category status quo," Rives said. "However, there are some exceptions to this."

Two programs, one for a bachelor's degree in economics, teacher certification option only; and for a master's degree in speech communication, education option only; were recommended for elimination.

Programs under observation for low or no enrollment, classified as status quo (asterisk), are a master's degree in botany, education option only; a master's degree in zoology, education option only; a master's degree in music, education option only; and for a master's degree in physical education, education option only.

Also under status quo (asterisk) classification are bachelor degree programs in French, German and Spanish; including Afro-American studies which will be reviewed during the 1981-82 academic year, Rives said.

A specialist in education degree in instructional media was also recommended for the status quo (asterisk) category.

In other business, the CAA approved JOU 4751, "Photojournalism," as a new course.

Voter deadline set for Monday

The voter registration deadline for those planning to vote in the township elections April 7 is 4:30 p.m. Monday.

Potential voters may register with the election department at the courthouse or with their precinct committeeman, Janet David, a worker at the election department said.

Students can find out who their campus precinct committeemen are through the Young Democrats and Young Republicans on campus.

A form of identification with a current address must be presented when registering, David said.

Students in resident housing may use their student identification card with a meal sticker on it, she said.

Voting polls for the precincts will be the same as for the November presidential election.

Senate committee agrees to support new P-F policy

by Crystal Schrof

The Student Senate Academic Affairs committee Thursday agreed by consensus to support a pass-fail option which states that if a student receives an F in a pass-fail course, the grade will not be added to the student's record.

The committee proposed the pass-fail option as an alternative to one that was recently defeated by the Council on Academic Affairs. That proposal said that if a student received an A in a pass-fail course, the A would then be recorded on the student's record.

Tim Bousky, academic affairs committee member, presented the new pass-fail proposal.

Bousky's proposal calls for only credit hours of a pass-fail course to be recorded in a student's record. If the student fails the course, no credit would be received, but the F would not be figured into the student's grade point average.

Currently, if a student receives an F in a pass-fail course the grade is recorded in the student's record.

Bousky said students are penalized for failing a pass-fail course under the current system because if they pass, they receive only credit hours, but if they fail, the grade is put on their records.

Bousky said the current pass-fail option hurts students, which is contrary to the principle behind the pass-fail option.

Russ Robb, committee co-chairman, said the proposed pass-fail system would be of "greater benefit to students."

In other business, the committee discussed the proposed two five-week summer school session. Currently a five-week and eight-week session are offered in the summer, in addition to the intersession offerings.

The Faculty Senate is working on the possibility of implementing the two five-week summer schedule in order to improve the current summer school program.

Robb said students seem to be split on the summer school issue. He said he has "heard a lot of negative response" on the idea from students.

Robb said the committee also wants to research other schools' summer school programs to find out how they compare to Eastern's.

Robb said more research is needed on the summer school proposal. The idea is still in the "premature" stages, he added.

Try this survey with dinner

This month Eastern students will be given an opportunity to show how the food service serves their needs.

A Housing Board survey will be taken this month to discover if students who do not eat regularly in the residence halls would prefer to pay for fewer meals per week.

The "no breakfast plan" would allow students only lunch and dinner and would save them $20 per semester. The other alternative, the "no-weekend plan," would permit students to eat Monday breakfast through Friday lunch and the student would save $25 per semester.

Housing Director Lou Hencken has said he will have to see the results of the survey in order to determine if implementation will be possible in the residence hall food services.

Since 60 percent of each student's room and board fee is applied to food costs, Hencken said it would probably be fall 1982 before the alternative meal plans were implemented in order to make the "necessary corrections" in the budget.

Food Service Director Bev Sterling said that if "every student" opts for the no breakfast plan, the number of food service workers could be reduced. This could mean a great savings for the food service budget, although she said that, at this time, she could not tell how much money would be saved.

Also, students in residence halls at other state universities are allowed to have alternative meal plans and savings are made available to the students. Illinois State and Northern Illinois universities' alternative meal plans save students $15 and $20 per semester respectively.

These alterations in Eastern's food service eating plans may save the the school and students money. However, it is important that students take advantage of this opportunity of voicing their opinions on the alternative meal plans. Unlike voting, where students have to walk all the way across campus, this survey can be taken in the relative comfort of the residence hall cafeterias.

We believe that students who do not to eat as often as others should not pay for the food they do not eat. However, these students must do something about it if they don't want to pay for it. Here's your chance, don't pass it up.

Your Turn

People don't listen

Editor:

This is in response to Herb Meeker's viewpoint column (March 3, 1981).

I would like to bring a few items to your readers' attention regarding the energy conservation task force's work:

1. We have, in fact, made suggestions which involve student participation. For example, we suggested that cold water washing be implemented in residence hall laundry facilities. In spite of the fact that such a program has been used at other universities and has even been used by hospitals with satisfactory results, we were informed by housing that this suggestion was flatly rejected by the Residence Hall Association.

2. Shower restrictors have been installed throughout the campus in an effort to conserve increasingly costly and precious water. Students have been removing these, and, in some cases, the entire shower head, allowing the water to gush from the open end of the pipe.
3. Other suggestions and programs have met with similar results.

It is most discouraging to see well thought out suggestions and programs snubbed by students, staff and faculty alike. Waste of shared resources represents a "tragedy of the commons" which will adversely affect the entire university community. If students are truly interested in conservation, we encourage them to contact me here at the physical plant. We can use all the help we can get.

Attend the kick-off

Dear students:

On March 10, 11 and 12 you will have the opportunity to begin to protect yourself, your friends and neighbors, while making your entire community a safer place to live.

The Residence Hall Association is in the process of initiating the 'Whistle Stop' program, which utilizes a loud, shrill whistle on a breakaway chain to scare off assailants and intruders while alerting others to your need for help.

A vital part of the 'Whistle Stop' project is the use of speakers to educate users of the seriousness and benefits of 'Whistle Stop.'

I encourage and invite you to attend any of the three 'Whistle Stop' kick-off presentations at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, March 10, 11 and 12 in Buzzard Auditorium. Someday, it could be your whistle signaling for help.

Letter Policy

The name and phone number of at least one author must be submitted with the letter. Letters submitted without a name (or with a pseudonym) will not be published. Names are withheld upon request.

Letters should be typewritten and not exceed 250 words. Letters longer than the 250-word limit will be cut with the writer's permission. Handwritten letters will be accepted but must be legible.

Letters reveal perils of Collegiate life

Times are tough. Most people would probably agree with that statement. The economy is a mess. Crime runs rampant in the streets. Unwanted pregnancies victimize millions of teen-age girls each year. And, the Cubs have traded Bruce Sutter and Dave Kingman in one winter.

Yet, amongst these harsh realities of life, I always thought some young people could seek refuge by living in the fish bowl of college.

After all, college students don't have to work at boring 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. jobs every day. They don't even have to go to class if they don't want to. In fact, if they are clever and pick and choose their spots, college students can enter and remain in an unreal state for days at a time.

Many college students don't even have to worry about the expense of such a life, because mommy and daddy foot most if not all of the bill.

Nevertheless, if recent letters received by the Daily Eastern News are representative of current attitudes, it seems that even collegiate life has its share of unique hardships.

And I must say that these letters have made me wonder whether students begin to lose their perspective after living in a college environment.

One young lady, for example, recently wrote to complain that she was not allowed to drink her soda in a particular part of the library while she was studying. She said it was too noisy to study in the area designated for soda drinking, and rhetorically asked if drinking in the non-soda area was worse than her "hiccupping for an hour" after guzzling the soda in the allowed area.

Another person wrote about an even more critical problem which, come to think of it, could be worsened by the guzzling of soda.

Personal file:

Andy Savoie

The lack of sanitary bathroom facilities in the Union and the lack of toilet paper in the science building are the difficulties this lady has encountered. She was quite indignant about it, too, pointing out that she is a taxpayer and demanding that the "loafer or loafers" be rooted out.

And finally, the most thought-provoking letter was submitted by a gentleman just a few days ago. He detailed his displeasure with the way women carry their umbrellas, the speed at which people walk and the guesswork involved in finding unlocked doors on campus buildings.

Admittedly, all three of these people have legitimate beefs, and my purpose here is not to ridicule them.

But, at the same time, it's hard for me to not imagine the soda lady getting beaten by umbrella-wielding studiers disturbed by her hiccupping in the library. And, if she happened to survive that, she'd have an awful time trying to relieve herself of the guzzled soda in the Union or Science Building bathrooms.

By then, she'd probably have to walk funny on her way to a locked residence hall.

My imagination notwithstanding, I just hope the soda lady and people like her will consider the plausibility of my belief—that college life is comparatively cushy and that these types of problems are relatively insignificant. Especially when compared to people who must deal with inflation, crime, drugs and the Cubs every day.

values and re-examine them. It was exactly what I needed, regardless of whether it's right or wrong."

However, she added, "I won't recommend it to other people. I think much more research is needed before entering the organization. Most people at CARP didn't do the research."

Even though the Newhouse's were successful in getting their daughter out of the Moonie organization, they are still "adamantly opposed to it," Mrs. Newhouse said.

"We can't just walk away and leave it just because we got our kid out," she said.

She said she sees members of the organization—"especially the leaders—as dope pushers" and what they have to offer is "just as addicting and just as destructive."

Mrs. Newhouse said, "We consider the cult as a threat to our young people and we saw it (the informational meeting held by the Moonies at Eastern Feb. 13) as the first step toward establishing a unit at Eastern. We feel there are some things we have to fight."

Mrs. Newhouse said she and her husband are very willing to speak to any interested group about their experiences with the Unification Church.

Lee Newhouse
Mother of former Moonie

"We feel it is an obligation" to continue to fight the church, she added.

have a cumulative grade point average of 2.25 and be enrolled as a fulltime student. Currently, a senator has to be in good standing with the university.

In the proposal, four senators would be elected in the at-large district, three senators from each of the off-campus and residence hall districts for both the fall and spring elections.

Currently, five senators are elected in each of the at-large, off-campus and residence hall districts in the fall.

In the spring, six senators are elected from the at-large district, five senators from off-campus and four from the residence hall district.

Mueller said he feels now is the time to cut the Senate.

"It is nothing against this semester's Senate, but it's time to make improvements which should have been made long ago," Mueller said.

Teaching Certificates

February 20 was the deadline for spring graduates, desiring an Illinois Teaching Certificate, to apply for "Cards of Entitlement." Any spring 1981 candidate for graduation who wants and is eligible for a teaching certificate, but who has not yet applied for "Cards of Entitlement," should contact George Schlinsog in the Buzzard Education Building, Room 100 immediately. Although the deadline has passed, this office will do everything possible to obtain the necessary Entitlement Cards by the end of the term. Prompt action on the student's part, however, will be a vital factor.

George W. Schlinsog
Assistant Dean
School of Education

National Guard Students

Students planning to use the National Guard scholarship for the Summer Term should be aware that they will be rebilled late in the term for tuition and fees if insufficient funds remain in the National Guard Program's appropriation to pay for those in attendance. Unfortunately, the final decision may not be known until after July 1.

Eastern to host NCAA 'Last Chance Meet'

Eastern senior Reo Rorem strides ahead of the pack in a meet against Murray State and Illinois State held at Lantz Fieldhouse Feb. 20. (News photo by Marcia Steele)

by Dan Brannan

Seniors Joe Sheeran, Reo Rorem and Augustine Oruwari will run in their last home indoor meet Friday, when Eastern hosts the NCAA Division I Last Chance Meet at 7 p.m. at Lantz Fieldhouse.

Competing with the Panthers will be Kentucky State, Illinois State, DePaul and Bradley Illinois universities along with eight other schools.

Eastern track coach Neil Moore said the intent of the meet is to qualify individuals for the Division I finals at Cobo Arena in Detroit, Mich., March 13-14.

Moore said he is getting many partial team entries for the meet.

"There will be about 200 competitors here. These teams are getting one more chance to qualify their individuals," Moore said. "In general, the quality of the meet will be quite high."

Moore said there is a 7-foot-1 high jumper entered in the meet, Illinois State's Vincent Davis.

Moore also said Indiana State's Dale Henderson has a 57-foot shot put throw and will be entered in the meet along with Kentucky State's Darwin Shaw who has exceeded 24 feet in the long jump.

"Another feature of the meet will be Sheeran in the two mile," Moore said. "He will be trying to break Eastern's two mile record."

The current two mile record is held by former NCAA Division II All-American Mike Larsen, with a time of 8:48.

Rorem and Dave Houston will be challenging Indiana State's Glen Urbanik in the mile. Urbanik has a 4:07.8 time, while Rorem has cut his to 4:09.

Moore said there are also five people, who have not run under 50.0, entered in the 440-yard dash.

Arkansas's Tony Guercio, a former Illinois state champion in the 440, will be one of the 440 runners in the meet, Moore said.

Moore said the 60-yard dash should also be an excellent event in the meet.

"We have two people entered who have run a 6.2, and three who have run a 6.3," Moore said.

The mile relay should also be a good race, the coach said.

"Illinois State has run a 3:13, Western has run a 3:17 and Kentucky State has recorded a 3:20," Moore said.

The Panthers could be without ace Claude Magee, who had "several teeth pulled earlier this week. He may not even compete," Moore said.

Eastern has already qualified two individuals for the national meet, Oruwari in the high hurdles and Sheeran in the three mile.

It's unlikely we'll have anyone else," Moore said. "Most will be running for personal records this weekend."

Eastern distance runners Joel McKinney (front) and Mike Beresford (back) keep a steady pace in a race held here earlier this season. The tracksters will conclude the 1981 indoor season Friday night at the Lantz Fieldhouse. (News photo by Marcia Steele)

Hockey Club to end year with Illinois Invitational

by Scott Fishel

The Eastern Hockey Club will round off its 4-4-2 season this weekend with a trip to Champaign to participate in the Illinois Invitational Tournament.

Only three teams will participate in the annual tournament after Kankakee, which was originally scheduled to play, cancelled at the last minute.

Eastern will take on the Champaign Juniors at 6 p.m. Friday, March 6, at the Champaign Ice Arena. They will then play Joliet Junior College at 10 p.m.

Coach Doug Andreasen said he is not sure how the teams will be matched after Friday because of the Kankakee withdrawal, but he said Bradley Illinois University is also sending a team to the tournament.

The championship game will be at 12:45 p.m. Sunday, March 8.

Andreasen said he feels his team has a good chance of winning the tournament because of its past record against all of the teams.

He said the team practice Wednesday, and everyone seemed, "pumped up and ready to play."

Cagers romp 75-55 at state

CHICAGO—Eastern's women's basketball team took its first step towards a state title Thursday night with a 75-55 victory over Northeastern Illinois University in the first round of the AIAW Division II state tournament at Loyola University.

The Panthers face Loyola, which beat Bradley University 79-71 in double-overtime Thursday, in the second round of the tournament at 6 p.m. Friday.

Sophomore Kassebaum paced Eastern in scoring with 28 points, followed by Linda Ellsworth with 14 and Joann Archer with 12 points.

Coach Bobbie Hilke said Eastern did not play an exceptionally good game and placed the blame on the uncertainty of when Eastern would play and the late game time.

Because the College of St. Francis did not decide to enter the tournament until Wednesday, it was not decided until late Wednesday night that the Panthers would play their game at 8:11 p.m.

Eastern did not clinch the game until the final three minutes of play, leading by only three at the three minute mark.

In other tournament action, two upsets knocked second-seeded CSF and third-seeded Lewis University out of the tournament.

Bluegrass jammers twang up weekend

by Jeff Green

A lot of pickin' and grinnin' is in store for bluegrass music fans when the 21st Eastern Illinois University Bluegrass Jam Session comes to Eastern's campus. The jam will begin at 10 a.m. Sunday in the University Union Ballroom and the music won't stop until 6 p.m.

Coordinator Jerry Ellis of Eastern's Chemistry Department said that the session is being sponsored by the University Union.

There will be about 50 musicians attending the jam session, Ellis said.

Area musicians who will be performing in the jam session will begin playing in the halls of the University Union between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., Ellis said. The musicians whether performing as an individual or in a group will take turns jamming on the stage in the Ballroom beginning at 1 p.m., Ellis added.

The Bluegrass Jam Session began in the spring of 1974 and has been successful ever since, Ellis said.

The session is put on each year on the second Sunday in March, August, and November. In August it is held at Lincoln Log Cabin State Park, Ellis said.

Among the instruments used, Ellis said, will be mandolins, acoustic guitars (no electric instruments are allowed), upright "dog house" basses, "Dobro" acoustical steel slide guitars, harmonicas, and five-string banjos.

Ellis said that the reason the University sponsors the Bluegrass Jam Session is not only to get area bluegrass musicians together but also as a public relations effort to give people a chance to see Eastern's campus while enjoying the music.

Chicago pub draws gays, pink-haired punks

by Cy Gaffney, Jr.

Three years ago, a John Travolta—look-alike from “Saturday Night Fever” would stroll out of E.L. Krackers to the tunes of Donna Summer or K.C. and the Sunshine Band. On the north side of town, a John Travolta look-alike from “Urban Cowboy” would waltz out of Ted’s Warehouse to the music of Mickey Gilley, Willie Nelson or Lynyrd Skynyrd.

But, in a scruffy bar on the near north side of Chicago, a guy and a girl stroll out to the tunes of “The Clash,” “The Pretenders,” or “The Ramones.”

The couple is not dressed in cowboy regalia or three—piece disco garb either. The guy is wearing a black leather jacket, torn jeans, short—cropped hair (with no sideburns) and a purple undershirt. The girl has on a leather jacket and her hair is styled like the “Bride of Frankenstein.” And the color is bright pink.

The couple is standing on the corner of Clark and Erie and are about to enter a run down building with green bricks. The corner bar is called “O’ Banion’s” and is one of the hottest new wave bars in the city and caters exclusively to couples like the one mentioned.

Owner Everett Rogers is a friendly gentleman in his forties who has the vibrancy and enthusiasm of a teen. His favorite new wave bands are “The Cars,” “The Vans,” “The Clash,” and David Bowie. Everett mentioned that new wave is merely an off-shoot of rock n’ roll—but complete with the style of dress—new wave music has messages about poverty in urban areas, corrupt city officials and inhumanity of man to his fellow man.

When one steps into O’Banion’s, the atmosphere engulfs them. The bar has a green decor and the woodwork on the bars and various carved figurines are very well-preserved, since this was once a speakeasy belonging to gangster Dion O’ Banion during the twenties.

There is a stage at the back of the bar where live bands perform. Some of the Chicago new wave bands that have appeared at O’Banion’s have been “Lois Lane,” “The Buzz Cocks,” “Phil n’ the Blanks,” “London,” “Bohemia,” “The Painter Band,” and “We’re Staying.”

The bar features live bands on Monday and Thursday nights and during the month of March, some reggae bands will appear.”

O’ Banion’s first opened in the summer of 1977 and its location was previously occupied by “Saturday’s Girl,” a gay disco. The predecessor of O’ Banion’s was Lamere, a new wave bar on Wells St. When Lamere burnt to the ground, Everett went to Clark and Erie and opened O’ Banion’s.

It is advertised as a mixed bar, meaning that its clientele are both gay and straight. Everett said that about 15 per cent of the crowd is gay and the remainder are straight. He mentioned there is no real problem between the two because most of the gay customers are of the butch type and not the flamboyant queen type.

New wave pubs may not be opening up on the Charleston square, but Chicago is splashing the nightlife scene with O’Banion’s.

The Making of a queen: Talent + poise + be

Renee DeVore seems to be losing her balance as she practices for one of the group dance routines that the contestants will perform at the pageant. (News photo by Wayne Purdy)

by Sarah Coyle

Here she comes,... Miss Charleston? Well, it may not be Bert Parks singing praise to the winner as she tearfully parades down the runway, but it is the first step on the pageant ladder to becoming Miss America.

The beauty pageant has long been a colorful aspect of American culture. For years people have been accustomed to turning on the tube and viewing beautiful women clad in french-cut bathing suits reciting their opinions—in between their giggles—on the latest world crisis.

Today, the sponsors want to change America's opinion of the pageant. It is more than mere beauty.

Talent and poise plus beauty are the components that make a Miss America winner. The first step in utilizing the criteria to become what many young girls have dreamed of is to enter in a preliminary pageant.

The object of the Miss Charleston pageant is to find the next Miss Illinois—who will go on to become Miss America, Dorothy Chamness, the field director and a member of the board of directors for the Miss Illinois Pageant, said.

"We feel that Miss America is walking along the streets," she said.

The annual Delta Chi-sponsored Miss Charleston pageant will be held 7 p.m. Saturday in the University Union addition Grand Ballroom.

The Delta Chi Fraternity, the only fraternal organization to sponsor a preliminary pageant for the Miss America contest, has been a part of the Miss Charleston pageant for 14 years.

The pageant is open to any girl between the ages of 17 and 27 who live in either Cumberland or Coles County, Fran Mardjetko, the contestant coordinator, said.

The pageant consists of a talent competition, a seven minute interview and a bathing suit and evening gown competition.

There were 12 girls selected to be in the Miss Charleston pageant from the original 18 entries.

The contestants had to excel in their respective talents and the seven minute interview in order to be considered for the regional or Miss Charleston pageant.

One question the girls must consider in order to win is what qualities the Miss Charleston winner must possess.

"I guess it would be the girl with the most-rounded type of personality. The girl who has the good qualities in all the major areas that general society would look at and judge as a good value for a woman," Steve Liautaud, the executive producer for the pageant, said.

The judges look for basic qualities in the contestants, including self confidence, poise and talent, Chamness said.

Contestants for the Miss Charleston pageant rehearse in full dress for Saturday night.

Talent is a more important part of the competition. Miss America is not so much a beauty contest as it is a talent competition, Liautaud stressed.

The pageant stresses talent because the level of talent a contestant has will reflect in her overall personality, Chamness said. "They (the judges) are trying to find the girl who can present her talent the best in the competition."

Pageant contestant and former Coles County winner Janet Nolan said she believes it is the stage presence that counts, not the level of talent.

"A girl might get up there and play chopsticks on the piano and lose it because she's not confident, and that reflects through her talent," she said.

Chamness, on the other hand, said she believes the level of talent and the amount of time it took to perfect that talent is what is important.

The judges will vote for the degree of difficulty and the actual performance, Chamness said.

The winner of the pageant must be able to handle herself in all situations, like a public relations employee representing her district in the Miss Illinois or Miss America pageant.

talent, ranging from a solo to a song and dance as diverse as the contestants are. Although the contestants in the pageant for different years still have the one ultimate goal of becoming Miss Illinois and Miss America. Junior Sherri Snyder said she would like to win the pageant to "win and to be the contestant in the Miss America pageant." Shelly Williams used to work as a hostess for the pageant and has been a hostess for many years. Now she said she would like to go on stage and try her luck at being Miss Charleston herself. She said she is not sure, she would like to be Miss America, she said she went through a lot of haircuts and haircuts to prepare for the pageant. After three haircuts and haircuts Williams finally got her hair the way she wants it. She said she had to go through a lot of changes, however, did with her looks but with her talent.

One time high school and Eastern band baton twirler, Snyder said she was going to twirl flaming batons as her talent—that is, until the judges recommended that she find another talent.

Snyder said one of the judges told her she would have to have two people armed with buckets of water standing on either side of her if she was going to twirl her flaming batons.

The bathing suit contest has always been a highlight of many pageant competitions—especially with the male viewers.

However, contrary to popular belief, the bathing suits are not worn in the Miss America pageant to exploit the women, Chamness said.

The bathing suits are worn to test the contestant's poise in stressful situations. "Any young lady who can keep her composure while walking out on the stage in a swimsuit in front of thousands of people can handle anything," Chamness insisted.

But, it still pays to look good in your bathing suit. The current Miss Charleston, Denise Tomasino—in order to prepare for the pageant—went on a diet.

Live albums

Eagles and Fleetwood Mac abound in sound

Eagles Live/Fleetwood Mac Live

The Eagles and Fleetwood Mac have been two of the most successful rock groups of the last six years or so. Both bands give highly stylized, polished performances on vinyl and off. Their popularity is due, not to an appeal to the lowest common denominator, but to a unity of artistic vision and an intelligent pop sensibility.

These albums are the first live offerings for either group and both are excellent souvenirs of an Eagles or Mac concert.

Live recording has reached such a state of the art that the sound quality can equal that achieved in the studio. The disadvantages are that you can only record as many instruments as you have people to play them—no overdubbing. And you get only one take—mistakes count.

Of course, you can get around the latter problem by recording numerous concerts and choosing the pick of the litter. You can circumvent the first problem too, by having various guest musicians on stage—which both bands do, especially the Eagles.

Recorded over three different tours, Eagles Live has 14 songs, half from

by John Stockman

their last two albums. It has a clean mix, with punchy bass and a bright high end.

These guys must sound awesome in concert. Their live sound has the same power as their studio sound; many of these songs are exact replicas of the originals.

But the faithful reproduction creates a problem. There is not much new. Eagles Live is not a good value for the person who has a number of Eagles' albums, especially Greatest Hits and Hotel California. For the fan with few of their records or for the fanatic, it is money well-spent.

Following a recent trend in live albums, Live has one new song, Steve Young's "Seven Bridges Road," an acoustic number featuring the band's high harmonies. The best performance is "Saturday Night," one of four waltzes the Eagles have recorded.

The 18 songs on Fleetwood Mac Live were taken from the Tusk tour. The recording varies from a spare, lean sound to a lush, full one, depending on the song.

John McVie on bass and Mick Fleetwood on drums are still one of the most propulsive rhythm sections around. Christine McVie on keyboards more than makes up for the lack of guitars.

But the most valuable player is still Lindsey Buckingham. His electric guitar often gives the tension and turbulence that makes the songs go. He is no slouch at acoustic picking either; check out his beautiful, slowed "Never Going Back Again."

There are some disappointments here. Buckingham's "Not That Funny" is the longest song on Live, clocking in at 9:04. The sporadic, slow pace of the middle section sinks the song, and practically the whole second side. Not that funny, is it?

Stevie Nicks is the major flaw in the band's veneer. Constant touring has roughened and cracked her voice, and she does not hit the high notes she once did. For the most part, her singing is OK, though the phrasing is stilted on "Sara."

"Landslide" is her most curious song. Nicks' singing fades and falters frequently, cracking once or twice. Yet, "Landslide" is a song about losing dreams and innocence, about growing older, and Nicks' aging voice seems strangely appropriate. And very tender and sincere.

Buckingham's screaming, screeching guitar sounds as if he uses human ganglia for strings. The whole instrumental combination of rushing rhythm, spooky organ, and singing guitar takes the breathe away.

"I'm So Afraid" cannot be topped as a closer, so the last song, Brian Wilson's "The Farmer's Daughter," does not try. ("Daughter" is one of three new songs on Live. Others are "Fireflies" and "One More Night.") "Daughter" is a different type of song for the Mac. It has a chunky, loping rhythm, no instrumental break, and features the ethereal harmonies of Buckingham, McVie, and Nicks.

Both albums are good sets. Although more flawed, Mac's is better because it takes more risks. It has more disappointments than Eagles Live, but more triumphs too. Either way, you cannot go wrong.

Secret 'Formula' exposes conspiracy of liquid gold

"The Formula/Starring Marlon Brando and George C. Scott

I visited the gas pump before driving my American-made gas guzzler to see "The Formula" without thinking twice about the $1.32 price tag that hung out over the curb like the conquering flag of some distant oil company.

It seems like every time I find the courage to approach a gas pump, it spits out less of that precious petroleum product and reaches deeper into my shallow pockets.

"The Formula," I was happy to discover, explained the give-and-take system in very simple terms. The theory advanced through this movie is that "Big Oil" is responsible for the bite that gasoline takes out of our budget.

Of course the theory is not new, people have been shouting this all along. But I was glad to see someone actually embodying the theory in the plot of a film and creating a batch of

by Scott Fishel

characters to give it a human rather than statistical base.

Intrigue, espionage, and a trail of "whodunit" clues and answers are the basic plot of "The Formula." Not until the end of the film does the message really surface. And when it does come forth, it hits home with everyone who has felt the pressure of high gasoline prices.

The problem with the movie is that it takes too long to get to the point. Barney Caine (George C. Scott) is a veteran Los Angeles cop who flies off to Germany on the wild notion that the murder of two close friends is somehow connected to a top secret Nazi German project.

Genesis, the World War II project, involved research and development in synthetic fuels, and a coal gasification process that was perfected and used by the Germans because of their lack of natural crude oil.

What begins as a simple murder investigation leads Caine to discover that American oil baron Adam Steiffel (Marlon Brando) has had access to this secret formula for years. But he has chosen to keep it secret in order to drive up the price of oil.

Steiffel justifies his actions in the name of free enterprise, and ultimately profit. His shallow view of the American Dream revolves around the automobile, a clue to his own greedy motives.

Although the characters are well defined and the actors who portray them seem to fit the molds very well, the story unfolds very slow. The viewer is often left wondering if Caine, with the observation of Sherlock Holmes and the courage of James Bond, will ever solve this deep historical and political riddle.

I think I had the gist of what was going on before the actors did.

The film does not lack in dramatic ingredients. There is sorrow, hate, a touch of comedy, a glimpse of empty love and enough foul language and violence to give the film an "R" rating. But these tidbits are so fragmented that it is hard to see their purpose except to lengthen the film.

On the way home from the theater, I stuck out my tongue as I passed the filling station I had visited two hours earlier. By that time I had resolved that its greatest asset was not the liquid gold that is the life of our mobile society, but the air that we use to fill up our tires.

It is one of the few things left in the world that you can get for free.
